

POLS Y200: Politics of Corruption

Tu/Th 2:30–3:45 PM
Woodburn Hall (WH) 121

Instructor: Timothy Model

Email: tmodel@indiana.edu

Office: Woodburn Hall (WH) 409

Office Hours: Tu/Th 12:45–2:15 PM or by appointment

Course Description

This class explores the dark “underbelly” of politics: corruption. The course will introduce students to the ways in which people around the world evade rules through corruption. The course will begin with defining corruption, presenting competing origin explanations for corruption, and discussing how corruption operates at different levels. We will then expose three political manifestations of corruption: cronyism, political machines, and organized crime. We will finish the course with an overview of anti-corruption strategies. Lectures and films will compare corrupt activities across Russia, China, Italy, and the United States, among other countries. Students will leave the class with knowledge of corruption and its implications, as well as an appreciation of the importance of studying this political underbelly.

Course Policies

• General

- Lectures and PowerPoints will be posted, but these slides should be considered an outline of lectures. It is the student's responsibility to take notes.
- Feedback will not be provided on assignments before assignment due date unless otherwise noted.
- Course communications will be sent via Canvas. It is your responsibility to check your Canvas messages to stay updated on announcements, assignments, grades, feedback, and other instructor communications.
- Please let the instructor know if you require special accommodations prior to the first assignment's deadline.
- Any concerns with grades should be discussed with the instructor in person during office hours rather than through email.
- Academic integrity is an important component to political science research, and therefore, cheating and plagiarism will not be tolerated. Please review Indiana University's Code of Student Rights, Responsibilities and Conduct.
- Please mute all electronic devices and avoid using cell phones during class.
- Studies show that students retain more information when taking notes by hand (e.g. Mueller and Oppenheimer 2014). Nevertheless, laptops may be used in class but only for the purposes of taking notes and other class-related exercises.
- Assignments submitted through Canvas must be submitted in .pdf, .doc, or .docx format. Other file formats will not be accepted.

• Attendance, Absences, and Late Assignments

- Attendance is expected and will be taken randomly throughout the semester. Attendance comprises a portion of the Class Participation/Attendance grade.
- Two unexcused absences will be allowed per student without penalty.
- Students are responsible for making up any missed work, regardless of the reason for their absence. It is also the absentee's responsibility to gather missing notes or materials.
- Unexcused late work will receive a deduction of a letter grade for every 24 hours after the deadline.
- Please email the instructor with proof of reason for an excused absence or late work, such as illness, among other reasons. Students are encouraged to contact the Student Advocates Office for any questions regarding absences.

Course Sections:

*Below is a broad overview of the tentative schedule of course sections and topics covered within those sections. Sections with a * are ones on which you may choose to write your section paper. The schedule may be modified throughout the course to match the class' progress. A new syllabus will be made available on Canvas if such changes occur.*

Assignment InstructionsSection Paper

Students will use their section paper to elaborate on one topic covered within one of the following three sections: corruption, political manifestations of corruption, and fighting corruption. A section paper should not be summary of an entire section. Rather, a section paper should focus on a single aspect within a section (see “broad topics covered” for ideas). The paper must incorporate relevant assigned readings on the topic in addition to lecture materials. All sources used must be cited in MLA, Chicago, or APA format, as well as listed in a bibliography. Outside sources may be used to supplement course readings and lecture materials. The paper should be double-spaced with 1-inch margins and no longer than 1,000 words, not including the bibliography. The section paper must be submitted on Canvas one week from the last day of the section by midnight.

Film Reaction x 2

Students will use their two film reactions to either elaborate on one topic covered within two of the films and documentaries shown during the semester or provide a thoughtful reaction to the material presented in the films and documentaries. Film reactions should not be summaries of the films or documentaries. Rather, film reactions should focus on a single aspect within a film or documentary. Although reaction papers are not required to incorporate course readings, outside readings, or lecture materials, students may include such sources. Any sources used must be cited in MLA, Chicago, or APA format, as well as listed in a bibliography. Papers should be double-spaced with 1-inch margins and no longer than 700 words. Film reactions must be submitted on Canvas one week from the date that the film or documentary was shown by midnight.

Group Presentation

The group presentation makes up the first portion of the final project. Students will be assigned to groups of approximately 3-5 persons, depending on the class size. Groups will select a country or organization that must be approved by the instructor. Groups will then choose whether to present on corruption or one of the political manifestations of corruption (cronyism, political machines, or organized crime) in that country or organization. Each group will have the same amount of time to present on their country and topic in the last two weeks. Each group member must present for an approximately equal amount of time during the group presentation. Further information on group sizes, group assignments, and allotted presentation time will be provided during the semester.

Presentation Writeup

The presentation writeup constitutes the second portion of the final project. In the writeup, each student will use their group's prior research and assigned course content to develop a paper that expands upon their group's presentation. Papers should conclude with a discussion of recommendations for fighting corruption in their selected country or organization. Papers should be double-spaced with 1-inch margins and no longer than 1,800 words. Each student will submit their own, original paper, though students may consult with one another for peer feedback. Instructor feedback will also be available until Tuesday, April 25 at midnight. The submission deadline for the writeup is May 2 by 4:45pm. Further information on the presentation writeup will be provided during the semester.
